The Constitution of the joint radio station, WNTC, has been approved by the organizations committee composed of students from both colleges, Daniel Weinberg, chairman, announced today.

Under this constitution a comprehensive program will be possible and will require active participation. An outline of this constitution shows that an Executive Board consisting of the Station Manager, Co-Station Manager, secretary, and a chairman of each of the following committees, Business, Engineering, Programing, and Publicity will head the station. The constitution provides for filling vacancies and electing officers, and places responsibility upon the members of the committees.

The constitution further states that this will be a non-profit organization and defines the duties of each committee.

The Business committee shall be responsible for the maintenance of all books of account and supervision of all sales, purchases and financial operations. The Engineering committee shall be responsible for the design, construction, and maintenance of all station facilities. The largest committee will be Programing. It shall be responsible for the choosing and arranging of all programs, and the production of these programs. This committee shall consist of all persons concerned with the actual production of these programs including announcers, actors, actresses, control room engineers, producers, script writers, disc jockeys, etc. The Publicity Committee shall handle all public relations of the station, publicizing all programs, special broadcasts, and station policies. It shall also be responsible for investigating station operation and correcting same.

Call For Members To Be Issued

The organization of members of the campus station will be started in the near future. A call for all students interested in the various phases of radio technique will be issued soon by the chairmen of the various committees. The organization committee expects that a large number of students will participate and competition should be keen in all departments.

Plans Completed, Bids Submitted

It was also announced by Committee Chairman Weinberg that the studio plans have been completed by Tom Harris, the draftsman, and have been submitted to President Jess Davis of Clarkson and Dr. Frederick W. Crumb of P.S.T.C. for administration approval. As soon as they are able to give this approval, construction of the studio premises in the building in back of Crane House will proceed.

Dr. Frederick W. Crumb, president of Potsdam State Teachers College, announced that bids for equipment have been requested from several electronics companies and a decision on kind and quality of equipment will be made as soon as answers are received.
